DETAILED ACTION

Double Patenting

1. A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101, which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

2. Claims 1-13, and 16-22 are provisionally rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claims 1-20 of copending Application No. 09/989,864. This is a provisional double patenting rejection since the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-4, 7-13, 15-18, and 22, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Evain et al.

Regarding claims 1, 11, 13, 17-18, and 22, Evain discloses a X-ray scanning tube with deflecting plane with features of the claimed invention including a base (element 27), a filament (element 22), a deflector (elements 52 and 53), an insulator for electrically insulating the deflector from the base, the insulator defining bores, and a rod being received within the bore.

Regarding claims 2-3, 15, Evain shows a pair of deflector, insulator and rod.

Regarding claim 4, the cited art show the use of tubular means (element 62).

Regarding claims 7-8, and 10, the deflector defines a socket/hole or well means to receive an end of the insulator and the rod.

Regarding claim 9, the deflectors show a larger diameter for a gap formation (see figure 7).

Regarding claim 12, the rods are connected to the deflector.

Regarding claim 16, Evain teaches an anode (element 24).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Evain et al.

Regarding claim 5, Evain does not explicitly disclose a pathway for connection of the insulator to the base. However, since the insulator is supposed to be firmly connected to the base, various methods can be used to achieve this goal. It would have been obvious, therefore, to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify to Evain to use any desired arrangement such as a passageway to place the insulator in order to establish a stronger support for the insulator.

7. Claims 14 and 23, are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
